VERDUN TUNNEL AS SEEN BY REPORTER

(By Associated Press.)

Verdun, Oct. 3.—Just west of here, in the forest of Angonne, there is a remarkable military tunnel 45 feet underground, running right up to within 300 yards of the German trenches. It is one of the most hard-pressed points around Verdun, but through this tunnel reinforcements move forward without danger, relieving every two hours the men on the firing line.

There was a very American atmosphere about this tunnel, when the Associated Press correspondent visited it for the curious fact developed that the two officers in command were American residents, one a stock-raiser in Alberta, Canada, and the other a bank official of the Franco-American Bank of Los Angeles, Cal. Both were born in France and when the war broke out left their American business to come home and fight. And now they are in full charge of this underground highway, leading up to one of the most desperate positions along the front. They are so American that they speak English instead of French, and the commandant's headquarters—a little nest in the clay—has a big picture of Uncle Sam hanging on the wall.

Creeping through this tunnel toward the front line, the members of the visiting party knocked their steel casques on the roof, and plunged through water ankle-deep. Paul Cravath, the New York lawyer, a man of large build, 6 feet 6 inches tall, was bent double in the struggle through the tunnel. Along the way they passed an electric plant, throbbing with energy, and pumping the fresh air which keeps the tunnel habitable. Further on, in a large clay hole, a kitchen was in full operation, with soldiers eating bowls of noodles. "Let me introduce you to our chef," said the commandant, as a young soldier-cook came forward. "He is now the cook of this tunnel—and he ought to be a good cook for before the war he was chef to the French Ambassador at Rome."

Emerging from the tunnel into the front line French trenches, the German trenches were plainly visible on the crest only 300 yards away. The intervening space was swept clear as though by a cyclone. Instead of the beautiful green of the forest, that was left at the other end of the tunnel, here the whole outlook was gray and desolate; the ground jagged and vestige of grass or verdure, and the gaunt trucks of trees stripped of their last leaf and looking like so many scarecrows.

"This has been a rather quiet day—only two mine explosions," said the commandant—"two men injured, one in the shoulder, the other in the leg. That is little, for often we have 40 to 60 killed or injured in these mine explosions, which go on continually as the Germans try to mine under our trenches and we try to mine under theirs."

Even beyond the front line, the French soldiers had pushed their observation posts into the fire-rept dividing line, 300 yards wide. Some of these daring men could be seen almost up to the crest where the German line ran. They were crouched behind heaps of boulders, rifles ready. "Those men are only ten yards from the Germans," said the commandant.

As he spoke, Mr. Cravath of New York said: "I see a German; there he is on the crest; you can see his uniform with the round cap."
"And he sees you, too," said the commandant. "You have been under fire," he added as he led Mr. Cravath and the others to a more secure position.

vath and the others to a more secure position.

"It's good that German don't fire," remarked Cravath. "It might have been an international accident. Think of it—killing an American visitor to the French trenches."

Coming back from the front line trenches, one had a view of the many ceaseless activities in carrying on this great battle. At one point soldiers in short-sleeved shirts were digging graves in an improvised cemetery along the forest path. The cemetery was very large, and had been given a name: "Maison Forresteries," or forest home. Every grave had a wooden cross above it, with the name and regiment of the dead soldier.

The shells kept whizzing and bursting as the party moved along, and it got to be a pastime to note the long s-z-z-z as the shells flew overhead. One of them struck a few hundred feet away, throwing up trees, earth and clouds of smoke.

To those who wanted souvenirs there were fragments of shrapnel lying at every turn. It was pleasant at first to pick them up, but after three or four of these heavy hunks of steel were carried half a mile, the task was abandoned.

The ingenuity of some of the trench quarters along the way is shown in the use of empty glass bottles for windows. Our officer pointed out with pride to the artistic effect he had secured with these empty wine bottles. A triple row extended all across the front of his long shack, giving light within and having rather a cathedral window effect without. The bottles are of white glass, used for bottling the white wine of Bordeaux.

The headquarters of General Neville, in command of the operations at Verdun, are quite a way outside the city, at a little cross-road hamlet, which cannot be named for military reasons. The general's offices are in the town court-house, a two-story structure. It was in this same building that General Petain, who preceded Neville, and General de Castelnau, piously made the plans of the first onrush of the Germans which held them until reinforcements could be brought up.

General Neville goes to Verdun and along the trench front frequently. But most of his time is at headquarters, in the telephone and telegraph, with the whole circle of defenses, and in touch too, with the other army corps and masses of supplies ready to be moved forward to fill any gap the Germans may make.

As we were at General Neville's headquarters, a party of German prisoners came by. They marched two and two, their gray uniforms and round cap contrasting with the French blue and asque. Already they were being sent to work, and instead of a gun each German carried a spade over his shoulder. At Verdun there is no civilian life whatever, but around General Neville's headquarters there were peasant women and girls mingling with the poilus, indicating civilian life still existed thus near to the bombarded town.

The roads back of Verdun present the most varied series of activity. On one side is a vast aerodrome camp, with some twenty enormous hangars of basket-steel construction, covered with canvas. Across the road is a riding-course running for miles, where officers can exercise their mounts, and cavalry can push forward in emergency without blocking the high road. Every now and then one sees a big vehicle shoot by bearing the sign "American Ambulance Corps." The thousands of horses and mules along the road are in good condition. Many of these horses came from America, and were run down by sea voyage, but after a month's feeding they proved very serviceable. On seeking the mules, one of the officers said:

"The demobilization of the Greek army had one very important result for the Allies—it released 10,000 mules which the Greeks had been using, and now these mules are proving invaluable to the Allies."

While the fields back of Verdun are rich with yellow grain, yet there is one melancholy evidence of the war in the burning of manure, usually the gray life-blood of the soil. The gray can be gathered by the soldiers and the women who remain, but there is no time to distribute the manure over the land, and so it is burned. The last glimpse of Verdun came as the party passed a detachment of French soldiers, just out of the trenches and going to the rear for rest.

They were tired and heavily laden, but happy and cheerful as they swung along in irregular ranks, laughing and smoking as though they came from some agreeable occupation. They were all fine-looking young fellows, and they typified that calm and invincible spirit which the young French soldiers are putting into their service.

SOME CHANGES IN RED SOX MACHINE

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Oct. 3.—Of the seven-teen players who represented the Boston American League club in the famous eight-game world series with the New York Nationals in 1912 less than ten will be seen in the coming series to be staged before the end of the week. Counting the present season the Red Sox have won three pennants and figured in three world's series in the past five years. Victors over the New York Giants in the stirring struggle of 1912 by four games to three with a tie contest thrown in for good measure, the Red Sox added to their prestige in 1915 by sweeping through the Philadelphia Nationals to a world's championship, four games to one.

In the 1912 series outfielders Hooper and Lewis were the same fast fielding hard hitting players they are today. Gardner, the present third baseman, guarded the same sack; Cady and Carrigan worked behind the home plate and utility outfielder Henriksen figured as an emergency tie but did not play in the field. All these members of the Red Sox combination participated in the series of a year ago in addition to Janvrin, Barry, Hobitzel Gainer, Scott, Thomas, Shore Ruth, Leonard and Foster.

In 1912 the Boston team had a world's series batting average of .223 and a fielding average of .958. In 1915 the Red Sox batted .264 and fielded .978. This season the averages show that up to within a few days of the close of the pennant race the Boston club, considered as a whole was batting .248 and fielding .971. Taking the figures for the two world's series and the work of the team for the major part of the 1916 pennant season the grand average will be found to be batting .244 and the fielding average .969.

The opinion is held in some quarters that the outfield with Tris Speaker missing from the line-up is not as strong as the one that played in the 1912 and 1915 series. The absence of Barry from second base, due to injuries, is thought by certain critics to have weakened the infield defense and offense during the closing weeks of the race and it is contended that should he be able to participate in the series play the team will be far more formidable than with Barry on the bench.

There is but one opinion regarding the pitching staff, however, and a glance at the work of the twirlers, who have borne the burden of the hurling, and their records for the present season will indicate clearly the reason for the Boston fan's optimism regarding the outcome of the coming contests. The averages of the leading pitchers, both on the basis of games won and lost and earned runs per game by opponents, are as follows:

Shore, .600 and 2.75; Mays, .615 and 2.30; Ruth, .667 and 2.01; Leonard, .613 and 2.37; Foster, .591 and 3.07; Gregg, .333 and 3.23.

JOFFRE COMMENTS.

ARMIES OF SOMME

Paris, Oct. 3.—General Joffre, under date of September 29, sent the following order of the day, to the armies of the north:

"The general commander-in-chief expresses great satisfaction to the troops who have been fighting unceasingly on the Somme for nearly three months. By their valor and perseverance they have given blows to the enemy from which he has difficulty in recovering."

"Verdun relieved; 25 villages reconquered; more than 35,000 prisoners and 150 cannon taken; successive enemy lines broken through for a depth of 10 kilometers—such are the results already obtained.
"In continuing the contest with the same tenacious will, in redoubting their ardor in union with our brave allies the valiant armies of the Somme will be assured of a glorious part in the decisive victory."

Messrs. A. P. Whitener and James Espey, two popular citizens, engaged in a small affray Sunday night, but neither was injured. The Brookford bridge was the cause of the trouble, it was said.

—BACKACHE?

—RHEUMATISM?

—RUN-DOWN?

Those of us who are past middle age are prone to eat too much meat and in consequence deposit lime-salts in the arteries, veins and joints. We often suffer from twinges of rheumatism or lumbago, sometimes from gout, swollen hands or feet. There is no longer the slightest need of this, however, as the new prescription "Anuric" is bound to give immediate results as it is many times more potent than lithia, in ridding the impoverished blood of its poisons by way of the kidneys.

It can be obtained at almost any drug store, by simply asking for "Anuric" for kidneys or backache. It will overcome such conditions as rheumatism, dropsical swelling, cold excretions, scalding and burning urine and sleeplessness due to constant arising from bed at night.

MYSTERIOUS PAINS AND ACHES

Make Life Hard To Bear For Many Hickory Women

Too many women mistake their pains and aches for troubles peculiar to the sex. More often disordered kidneys are causing the aching back, dizzy spells, headaches and irregular urination. Kidney weakness becomes dangerous if neglected. Use a time-tried kidney remedy—Doan's Kidney Pills. Hosts of people testify to their merit. Read a Hickory woman's case:

Mrs. L. M. Thomas, 2 Tenth Ave., Hickory, says: "Some time ago I was down with backache, brought on, I believe by weak kidneys. The pain bothered me, particularly in the morning. After I was up and around for awhile, the trouble wore off, but appeared again the next morning. My ankles also became swollen. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got from Lutz's Drug Store, gave me relief from the first and two boxes removed the trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Thomas had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

A GREAT DISCOVERY. Swollen hands, ankles, feet are due to a dropsical condition often caused by disordered kidneys. Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

As a remedy for those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation caused by uric acid—as scalding, uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gout, it is simply wonderful how quickly "Anuric" acts; the pains and stiffness rapidly disappear.

The very best possible way to take care of yourself is to take a glass of hot water before meals and "Anuric" the discovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y.

Step into any drug store and ask for 50c package of "Anuric" which is many times more potent than lithia and eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A trial will convince you.
